Travel on dirt roads to a simple Amish farm house in Tennessee for a four-hour worship gathering of the “plain people” followed by a “dinner-on-the-bench.” Meet a Franciscan Monk In an unlikely Oklahoma town and participate in an ordination service of an Episcopal priest. Visit a country Methodist church in and learn what turns a trio or quartet into a choir. Visit a once thought dead monastery rising from the ashes in Eastern Europe; and an underground church rising above ground--both in the same city. At a synagogue in a western cow town, sing along on ancient Hebrew songs under-toned with the guttural accent of the Rabbi; which by the way, never happens on a Sunday. At a cinder-block church in an impoverished South African township, hear a life changing sermon led by a rumped suited dynamic black Pentecostal preacher. At lavish, history-laden Westminster Abbey, meet a Bishop in colorful mitered hat. Visit famous Anglican Lincoln Cathedral and learn of three distinct ways of taking communion and how to get in trouble if you want a communion smorgasbord.

This is a travelogue of worship experiences and includes stories of how the authors got there, about the people they met and what took place. This is not a scholarly work, although it includes historical and factual information. These fun, entertaining stories will appeal to you if you have curiosity about how others worship, but you do not have the time or energy to travel, explore and experience.
