The Middle East; Fourteenth Edition

The fourteenth edition of The Middle East brings important new coverage to this comprehensive, balanced, and superbly researched text. In clear prose, editor Ellen Lust (Yale University) and her outstanding contributors explain the many complex changes taking place across the region, bringing the latest research to new audiences. Based on reviewer feedback, key improvements to the text include: * In place of the former chapter on international relations, a new chapter on Domestic Conflict by David Patel, focusing on the critical intra-state conflict dynamics that are shaping the social and political landscape of the region. * For the first time, a new country profile chapter on Sudan by Fareed Hassan. * All country profile chapters now address domestic conflict dynamics in the context of the country under discussion. * All country profiles have been revised to ensure that they cover all thematic topics covered in the book, making cross-country comparison easier and more systematic. * Across the book, intensive coverage of major developments, like the ongoing conflict in Syria, continuing tensions between Israel and Palestine, problems with cross- and intra-border displacement of people, and the manifold repercussions of the Arab Spring uprisings. * All tables, figures, boxes, and maps have been updated for the latest data and information.
