The One I Miss and Other Poems: 30 Cries from the heart Ronald Reece

Ronald 'Blade' Reece was a young man who thought deeply on many topics and whose tough exterior hid a sensitive, caring soul.

Born in Harare, Zimbabwe and raised in South Africa he was an accomplished sportsman and showed great promise as an IT specialist. He was a talented roller blader, hence the nickname 'Blade'.

His greatest joy was his young son, Travis-Jon (TJ), who he was raising as a single parent.

Ronald had suffered many set-backs in his young life. Early in 2014 he took a job on the Kwa-Zulu Natal coast and he and TJ moved to Pinetown to start a new life.

Tragically, this was not to be. While snorkeling for crabs and mussels at the coast, he was caught in a strong rip-tide and drowned, leaving behind a young son and a proud but grieving mother.

While sorting through his effects I discovered these poems which I feel reflect his innermost feelings and thoughts.

I am publishing this anthology of Ronald's poems as a proud tribute to a beautiful son and a loving father.
